1. Paragraph 13

For the existing text substitute

13. The major challenge for rapid deployment of modularized camps is the absence of timely, reliable enabling capacities. The Department of Field Support and the Department of Management will continue to seek commercial and other innovative solutions for identifying enabling capabilities, including with other United Nations system partners. In an effort to further explore commercial options, a first request for proposals for a 200-person camp is being finalized. In the meantime, smaller modules are being established by mission support teams, which draw on United Nations resources deployed from Brindisi, Italy. In the face of the high demand for this capacity, a "global mission support team" concept is under development that would draw upon a wider pool of expertise from missions to deploy for short periods for specific needs.
